You should however have a genuine interest in studying a many thousand year old spiritual discipline. You need to be open for changes in all aspects of your life. You can definitely undertake the training purely for your own personal development, without any desire to become a teacher.

If you have experience in other forms of yoga than Kundalini Yoga you are more than welcome. We share the same background all of us and there will be many aspects that you already know and many new ones to be inspired by. To attend classes with a qualified Kundalini Yoga teacher before the training begins is recommended. If there is no teacher where you live, there are many ways to experience Kundalini Yoga through Internet.
